What's new?

- We have moved: The MnDOT Technical Certification Program has moved to the Maplewood Lab and is now part of the Office of Materials and Road Research. Our new address is MnDOT Maplewood Lab, Tech Cert Program M5645, 1400 Gervais Ave., Maplewood, MN 55109
- E-learning: Now offering select online learning classes
- MnDOT concrete testing YouTube video series New Batch Plant videos recently added!
- TC3 Self-directed Training Modules: Non MnDOT Employees
- Technical certification master list: List of certified technicians and their certification expiration dates

MnDOT has a new database system which allows students to access their certifications, request MnDOT Tech ID numbers, print off their certification cards and MORE! It's a great new system but must be set up and accessed by the STUDENT, not the company contact. Please stop here if you are a company contact and have your employees create their OWN accounts with a user name and password. Company contacts should NOT have access to these log-in credentials.

Tennesen Warning

We are required to give you this warning under section 13.04, subdivision 2 of the Minnesota Government Data Practices Act ("Act"). The State of Minnesota through its e-licensing portal collects information (data), to make determinations regarding the eligibility for licensure and to investigate individuals applying for licensure in the State of Minnesota. The information collected for licensure purposes may be classified as "private," other than names and designated addresses submitted by applicants for licenses. The information collected such as the identity of complainants who have made reports concerning licensees or applicants which appear in inactive complaint data, the Please create your user name and password (the STUDENT needs to do this – NOT the company contact). Even if you already have a MnDOT tech ID number, you still need to create an account in the new MnDOT database. You will have the opportunity to indicate that you already have a tech ID number. If you have a number, do NOT create a new one or you will have a duplicate account.
